Helping Law Firms Reach Their Market

Asiaiplaw.com brings together law firms and their clients.

Asiaiplaw.com is a unique blend of open-access news and articles, and subscriber-only content, updated on a daily basis.

All sponsored articles and Analyst Columns are open access, ensuring your articles are accessible to thousands of unique visitors.

Online Law-firm Directory

asiaiplaw.com also incorporates a powerful online directory of law firms. The online directory links relevant articles to your online profile. For example, if someone is reading an article about Malaysia, the articles lists all Malaysian law firms featured in the directory, at the end of the article.

And of course, these profiles link directly to your own site, making client contacts easier.

Asia IP - Intellectual Property News and Analysis / AI intersects India's patent regime

AI intersects India's patent regime

30 November 2020

Artificial intelligence continues to advance and become more intelligent, but the potential of AI not only lies in the adoption of AI, but also in how it is created and protected. India's patent laws must keep up, argue Gopi Trivedi and Shiva Mehta.

Machines at the time of Industrial Revolution were developed by humans to ease their work. Gradually, these traditional machines and industrial practices gained momentum, reducing considerable human labour. In the current scenario of Industry 4.0, the automation of traditional machines and industrial practices using smart technologies has paved the way. Machine-to-machine learning (M2M), internet of things (IoT) and artificial intelligence (AI) are integrated for automation. AI adoption is growing faster than many had predicted. AI itself is described as the fourth industrial revolution, transforming all our jobs and lives in the coming decade. Such advancement in technology was merely a fantasy – or we may call it a thoughtful representation of fiction – until few years ago. But, now, the concept of AI is no longer completely foreign to the general public and is right out there in the public domain.

What is artificial intelligence?

From Amazon and Facebook to Google and Microsoft, leaders of the world's most influential technology giants are highlighting their enthusiasm for AI. But what is AI? Machines have been in use since long ago, but what's different today, and is enabling this revolution, is the evolution of machine learning systems. No longer are machines just capturing explicit knowledge, where a human can explain a series of fairly-logical steps. Machine learning is already all around us, unlocking our phones with a glance or a touch, suggesting music we might like to listen to and teaching cars to drive themselves. Fueling this machine learning with data is what AI is all about. Global research and advisory firm Gartner perhaps put it best: "Artificial intelligence is technology that appears to emulate human performance typically by learning, coming to its own conclusions, appearing to understand complex content, engaging in natural dialogues with people, enhancing human cognitive performance or replacing people on execution of routine tasks."

AI can be simplistically classified as technology that is created by a human, improved by a machine and has the power to disrupt almost all aspects of human existence. Technology so developed can behave intelligently by thinking as a human [i.e., strong AI], or even surpass humans [i.e., super intelligence]. For better implementation and understanding, it is to be noted that currently we are in the weak AI phase.
